Apples To The Front

(By VPA)

Although Virginia apple shippers have met with some success in efforts to get their fruit into British markets despite German submarines, growers are endeavoring to enlist support of retailers for a statewide "Buy Virginia Apples" campaign to offset the breakdown of nearly all their foreign export trade. Because of wartime difficulties in shipping and bumper crops of apples in England and on the continent, an estimated one-fourth of the 8,000,000 bushel crop must be disposed of in domestic markets. State growers will seek to promote consumption of the fruit in Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania. The Federal Government, through its Surplus Commodities Division, has purchased its first carload of the bumper crop as one step in aiding growers.

Virginia Livestock Tops $66 Million

Virginia is comparatively free of livestock tuberculosis and is recognized as an accredited area, thus finding easier sale for its dairy cows, according to the annual report of the Division of Animal Industry, released by the State Department of Agriculture. Ten per cent fewer cattle were tested for tuberculosis because of lack of funds, the report indicated, adding that the total value of livestock on Virginia farms was estimated at $66,246,000; including horses, mules, hogs; cattle; milk cows and stock sheep.

Oyster Tonging Regulated

Oyster season in Tidewater converged on the Commission of Fisheries in Newport News last week, some protesting the ban against patent tongs in the Rappahannock River, others arguing that the the tongs hurt the valuable rocks. After a public hearing the Commission decided to allow the use of patent tongs in the lower part of the river to a line from Fowlk's Point to Burhand's Wharf; decreed that no one tonger may take more than 35 bushels a day; and that the tongs could not be used in water less than 20 feet deep.

Shirley Moves to Sell State Autos

Highway Commissioner Henry G. Shirley has recommended to Governor Price that he be permitted to sell at auction the 124 automobiles owned and maintained by the department for official use, and authorize employees to use their own cars on department business on a 5-cents-per-mile basis. Under the present plan the cost of operating the cars is $94,245.82 including a replacement charge of $31,320 Shirley said; a sum less that the $168,296.10 estimated as cost of the recommended system. Admitting the economy of the present system, Shirley said the proposed change would allay criticism of employees using state cars on what might sometimes be construed by the public as private business.

The morning meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. John Turnes, and will begin at 10 o'clock. The afternoon meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Joe Paulette, and will begin at 2 o'clock.

All home demonstration club members, 4-H members, and non members growing poultry are invited to attend the meeting most convenient.

Some other fall jobs to be checked now by flock owners are: make repairs to the laying house; stop leaks; replace broken glass and cover openings which permit drafts.

Give the laying house a thorough cleaning; then cover floor with straw, hay, shavings or other suitable litter.

Provide one nest for each four hens. Hay is a good nesting material. Backward pullets are not profitable winter layers; and when possible the remaining old hens except the later molters, should be sold. Don't forget to cull out the culling loser.

Motor Vehicle Tags Reduced To Half-Price Now

Motor Vehicle license tags have been reduced to half-price, Colonel M. S. Battle, director of the Division of Motor Vehicles said today, and are on sale at the Richmond offices or the arencies throughout the state.

Licenses are pro-rated October 1 of each year, the director said, and at that time go on sale at half-price. The tags are good until April 15, at which time all vehicles in the state must begin to use the 1940 license plates.

Passenger car tags sold for a full year on the basis of forty cents per hundred pounds will be reduced to twenty cents per hundred pounds. Motor cycle, sidecar, truck and tractor plates alike are reduced fifty per cent.

Asks Larger Appropriation

The addition of 118 men was asked in the budget for the Division of Motor Vehicles presented to Governor Price and the Budget Advisory Committee. The total amount requested in the two-year budget was $3,552,138, or $1849581 for 1940-41 and $702557 for 1941-42.

Appomattox Votes 50 to 1 For Marketing Quota on Tobacco

Blackburg, Oct. 5.- Virginia fine-cured tobacco growers voted almost 8 to 1 today in the AAA referendum in favor of marketing quotas for next year's bright tobacco crop.

The unofficial count in 26 of the 28 counties voting in the referendum showed 18,510 for quotas and 2,395 against. That made a percentage 88.5 for control.

The big bright leaf counties such as Pittsylvania and Halifax voted heavily for control in 1938. Bedford was the only county to vote against the plan. Cumberland was the only other county in which control failed to receive a two-thirds majority. In Appomattox county the vote was 50 for and 1 against.

A two-thirds majority of tobacco growers in all the flue-cured states was necessary to put the control plan into effect.

Faced with closed markets and the prospect of lower prices for this year's crop, Old Dominion growers reversed the stand they took in December when in a similar referendum on the 1939 crop only 1,661 votes were cast for marketing control and 12,789 against.

Under the revised procedure for 1940, individual growers were allowed to market all tobacco they grew on the average allotted them but a 10-cent tax would be levied on sales of every pound raised outside the allotted acreage.

Let's Kill This Rat!

No one in Appomattox should hesitate about joining in the campaign to rid our town of RATS. Rats are a menace to health. They destroy valuable property. They do not have a single redeeming virtue.

The campaign suggested by the Appomattox Raritan Club is practical and cheap. The campaign needs only YOUR cooperation!

War Boom and the Budget

The very large sums in recent federal budgets have shied some of us away from trying to figure at all concerning national finance. We did not get that far in our study of mathematics! However, we do feel inclined to venture a question. What will a "war boom" and its boost in prices do to our social security and relief budget? Prices always go up ahead of wages, and there is no likelihood that even a war boom would take up the unemployment slack. In the face of rising living costs, those receiving relief work or social security checks will doubtless find them inadequate. Then, what will increased tax revenues move swiftly enough to enable the amount on the checks to be varied in proportion to the change in living costs? How will the war boom effect the budget?

Maintain Normal Life

From Peninsula Enterprise

There is danger that people may become so excited over the war and disturbed by fears that our country will be drawn in, that they will neglect their home interests. Perhaps the best way to keep out of war is to attend strictly to our business. If people's minds are on their daily work and home town activities, they are not so likely to do things that create hostility.

Our schools have to fit the young people to earn their daily bread and to understand the meaning of American life. Our churches have to teach right conduct and help the people find the ways of peace.

Our social organizations have to keep binding people together in civic relations. If this work goes on as usual, our country will continue to progress, and probably have a better chance to avoid the dreadful storm of war.

Do You Know Stocks?

From Eastern Shore News

Just in case you have a little money of your own, or of somebody's else, and have an inclination to "mop up" some quick profits on the "boom" in stocks that wise-birds expect as a result of the war, the following statistics might be worth reading:

In 1929 fifty stocks reached a record high average of $311.90. On July 8, 1932, less than three years later, when the bottom dropped out of the "two cars in every garage" era, the same stocks averaged a low of $33.38. None of the experts foresaw the coming decline that caused a drop that averaged 277.92 points.

Today the same fifty stocks are on an average of around $109.58, according to last week's quotations. No expert knows now where they are going or how long they will stay there. It is presumed that you are no better informed than the experts.

Our advice to all potential stock buyers is to avoid speculation. If you buy for investment, based upon dividends, you might not get singed very badly but if you are buying to take profit out of an expected surge upward, keep your money where it is or put it where you can watch it.

This Polish Campaign

The character of the Polish campaign is becoming clearer in retrospect. More is known now both of the strength of the Germans and weakness of the Poles. Hitler's forces swept in from three sides with perhaps sixty divisions while the Poles were mobilizing. Poland had no more than thirty divisions and fourteen brigades of cavalry at war strength. German air superiority was overwhelming. The German armies are now thought to have used from one-half to two-thirds of their active air strength. Their plan of attack was fully developed, their story work brilliant and their espionage system complete.

Poland's military leaders seem clearly to have been overconfident. The general staff apparently crumbled almost at the first blow. Polish troops attempted border resistance without adequate barriers, and retreat without any prepared reserve lines of defense. Their 800 planes were blasted out of their fields, and the escape of some 300 aircraft to neutral territory indicates that their fleet was never fully engaged. They had few anti-tank guns and fewer tanks. Nevertheless, they fought with stubborn gallantry in the defense of Warsaw.

What ever else lies ahead, there is no likelihood that Germany will find similar conditions in the West. The French armies are fully mobilized. They cannot be attacked as the Poles could be, from three sides at once. They are well provided with anti-tank weapons and with anti-tank defense. Their general staff is believed to be as efficient as any in the world. Their fortress system is modern and elaborate. We do not know the strength of the British in France or the caliber of their army. But their strength is greater than that of the French. German planes cannot fly at will over France as they did over Poland. However the war develops on Germany's Western Front, it will hardly be at the same breathless tempo as in Poland. —From New York Times.

American Achievement

Within the course of the present Democratic administration, billions of dollars of money has been spent, much of it borrowed money. But, be it said to the eternal credit of America, that money has been spent for humane and CONSTRUCTIVE purposes. Except in wartime are and will spend ever larger sums, BUT for WAR with all its modern ruin. Were every nation in the world to follow our lead and for each one dominion spend its money for aid to suffering humanity, for education, and humane purposes, it is our opinion that the raised standard of life would make future wars impossible.
